
Dorrit's Fave Raves!

Do YOU want to be just like Dorrit? Because she's so incredibly bitchin' and cool? While that it true, if you want be just like anyone, you might want to look into therapy! But if you want to know everything there is to know about Dorrit just for the hell of it, here ya go!

vital stats

Full Name: Dorrit Tulane Walsh

Birthday: June 25

Marital Status: Young, single, and ready to mingle, baby!

(Okay, I'm not so young, but I am single.)

Hair Color: Blonde Eye Color: Gray

Age: Old enough to ignore this question

Hometown: Alexandria, Virginia

Lives: House in Boerum Hill, Brooklyn, NY

Kids: 2 dachshunds and 1 large "Himalayan whistle dog." (i.e., unknown breed)

Tattoos: Three, hope to get a fourth soon.

Job: Web producer/writer/designer; just got my dream job this year (for a nonprofit and gay org) and started right after my birthday.

Favorite...

Drink: Diet Dr. Pepper, frozen zombies, bourbon (not together, obviously)

Movies: "The Birds," "Spinal Tap," "Animal House," "Valley of the Dolls." Anything so bad it's good.

Place: My bedroom/my bed

Book: "Rock & Roll Dyke Werewolf"

Song: "I'll Be Seeing You," "Mother's Little Helper"

TV Show: "Absolutely Fabulous," "Will & Grace"

Hair Salon: Damien West in NYC

Accessory: Glasses, which are only for reading

Clothes: Jeans, saddle shoes, motorcycle jacket

Scientist: Isaac Newton

Rule: Cute girls only get to see my tattoos if they have sex with me.

Surprise: Some cute girls have actually fallen for that rule

Decade: The 80s. I came out, I had a band, I had big hair. What else could you want?

Pet Peeve

People who think they can edit content and write for Web sites, even though they have no knowledge of current online principles or theory, and who write for the Web the same way they write for print. Also, people who think they "know" intranets because they read a book. Try actually designing and managing an intranet or Web site - then get back to me.

hates n' Loves

- Finding out I didn't really know someone who I thought I knew; it's so incredibly disheartening.
- Cruelty to animals in any way shape or form.
- Drama queens, especially ones who don't admit it about themselves. Hey, it's not all about you!
- Babyboomers who say "dude" and "awesome." These don't belong to our generation, and it makes you sound like you're trying too hard.
- Anybody who doesn't like my dogs.
- People who aren't thankful for what they have, and whine about what they think they don't have.
- Online bulletin boards, especially for anyone over 30. Over 40? Grow up and get a life!
- Refusing to learn from your past mistakes.
- Anyone who takes him/herself too seriously. Lighten up, Francis.
- A girl sending me flowers absolutely blows me away
- My hair. It finally looks just like David Cassidy in 1973 and it's just fab.
- Karen on "Will and Grace"
- Sylvester Duncan (my iPod) rules!!
- The History Channel (Shutup, history rocks)
- Figuring out solutions to programming & design problems
- Intelligence combined with a great sense of humor
- Flirting
- Jennifer Saunders--she's a genius.
- Cute, smart, funny (and at least semi) sane girls who "get" me

Dorrit in the proverbial nutshell:

Just your typical over-privileged, private-school white girl from the suburbs who smashed head first into Glam rock and "The National Lampoon" at an early impressionable age and mutated from there.